Some Gift definitions are on the next page that may provide some help.

Discernment: The spiritual gift of discernment is the ability to quickly perceive whether such things as people, events, or beliefs are from God.

Exhortation: The gift of exhortation is often called the "gift of encouragement."

Evangelism: The gift of evangelism is the ability and desire to communicate the gospel of Jesus Christ so that non-Christians can become Christians.

Faith: The gift of faith is the ability to envision what needs to be done and to trust God to accomplish it even though it seems impossible to most people.

Giving: The gift of giving is the ability to give money and other forms of wealth joyfully, wisely, and generously to meet the needs of others and help support ministries.

Guidance: The ability to recognize and affirm the skills, talents, and spiritual gifts in other believers.

Help/Serving: The ability to identify the unmet needs involved in a task related to God's work, and to make use of available resources to meet those needs and help accomplish the desired results.

Knowledge: The ability to discover, accumulate, analyze, and clarify information and ideas which are pertinent to the well-being of the Church.

Leadership: The gift of leadership is the ability to communicate goals to others in such a way that they voluntarily and harmoniously work together to accomplish those goals for the glory of God.

Mercy: The ability to feel genuine empathy and compassion for individuals (both Christian and non-Christian) who suffer from distressing physical, mental, or emotional problems, and to translate that compassion into deeds which reflect Christ's love and alleviate the suffering.

Teaching: The gift of teaching is the ability to communicate information relevant to the health and ministry of the Church and its members in such a way that others will learn.

Wisdom: The gift of wisdom is the ability to have insight into people and situations that is not obvious to the average person, combined with an understanding of what to do and how to do it. It is the ability to not only see, but also apply the principles of God's Word to the practical matters of life.
